

A detailed architectural floor plan of a single-story house. The house has a symmetrical gabled roof. On the left side, there is a small front porch with a set of stairs leading up to a single door. To the right of the door, there are two rectangular windows, each divided into two horizontal panes. On the far right, a chimney is located at the end of the main wall. The roof slopes down from the center towards both the front and back walls. The drawing is a black and white line sketch on a light-colored background.
